

myPharma Thinktank Announces Strategic Pricing Through December 2016

myPharma Thinktank today announced that it is offering strategic pricing on its subscription based services through the end of 2016.

myPharma Thinktank is a unique biotech and pharmaceutical intelligence platform developed to meet the research, insight, and analysis needs of the pharma industry. The company offers a variety of database subscription options as well as value-added benefits including scientific content, white papers, and blogs.

New database subscription prices will now go into effect on Jan. 1, 2017, meaning there is still a month left to secure next year's services at this year's prices.

Also, myPharma Thinktank is still accepting applications for a seat on its Platinum Advisory Council. Membership in the council will provide members with insight on trends impacting the pharma and biotech industries and the opportunities they represent. Members will also gain key networking opportunities with top intelligence leaders in the biotech and pharma industry – resulting in valuable scientific information – and best-practices tools for using the company's databases to solve your complex problems. The council will host its kickoff meeting during the South Beach Food and Wine Festival on Feb. 22-26, 2017.

Company's Head of Global Sales, Jeff Cazeault commented "myPharma Thinktank's innovative collection of integrated databases is transforming strategic decision making for the biotech and pharmaceutical industry. This sophisticated and powerful tool enhances strategic decisions, business development, and clinical research and provides real-time insights and information solutions about companies, products, clinical trials, partnerships, licensing opportunities, regulatory tracking, and patents."
